Forgotten Books, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from Abnormal Features of American Banking: Address by B. E. Walker, President of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, Given at the Meeting of the American Bankers Association, Denver, Colorado, 30th September, 1908 I am a foreigner, but as five of the establishments included in the bank of which I am President are situated in cities of the United States, I hope you will not regard me as a foreigner for the moment. There are very few banks in the whole country who have a larger interest in the soundness of your banking and in your freedom from panics than my own bank. Remembering my peculiar position, I am particularly desirous not to wound the susceptibilities of any of my hearers, but I hope it is safe to say that Alexander Hamilton was clearly the leading intellect in that wonderful group of men who framed the constitution. At a time when few men could withstand the onrush of new ideas, largely visionary and false, which accompanied the French Revolution, Hamilton was unshaken in his clear vision as to the future of his country, and few will deny that where you followed his advice you did well, and where you opposed it you did not always act wisely. It may be argued that neither of the two Banks of the United States were so admirable in their careers that we need sigh over their removal, but we can only judge them by comparison with the smaller banks of the same period. In your colonial and revolutionary times you had a curiously full and varied experience in banking and currency. Fiat money, depreciated coinage, currency based on land, clamour by debtors for cheaper...
