Excerpt from The Sixth Book of the Annals, 1884 But his father, Scius Strabo, was not only a Roman knight; lie had risen to the distinguished post of commander of the praetorian guards, and this post he held at the close of Augustus reign and at the beginning of that of his successor. His mother too, if we may believe Paterculus, was a lady of good family, and his praenomen Aelius implies perhaps that he had been adopted by some member of the Aelian gens. Early in life lie was numbered among the colors or suite of Cains Caesar, son of Agrippa and Julia, and so the grandson of Augustus. From the very first lie had great influence over Tiberius, which, according to Tacitus, he misused by doing his best to inflame the emperors jealousy of Agrippina, when she Avon intense popularity with the army on the Rhine by supplying their necessities on their return from a victorious campaign against Arminius under her husband. He had, says the historian, a thorough insight into Tiberius s character, and sowed the seeds of hatred for a distant future. He was, in fact, a very far-sighted as well as a wicked intriguer - so we arc to believe. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
